

Prof. Natalya Shakhovska, Sc.D, head of Artificial Intelligence department, Politechnika Lwowska

Data preprocessing and data analysis methods in Big data interfaces

Big data requires additional resources for machine learning models implementation. Map-reduce paradigm allows only parallelizing the process, but the computational complexity is increased. The new ensembles of machine learning models are developed for data preprocessing (feature selection, missed date imputation etc) and data analysis.